William R. Moseley is a principal in the Jacksonville, Florida, and Atlanta, Georgia, offices of Jackson Lewis P.C. His practice focuses on representing employers in workplace law matters, including preventive advice and counsel, collective bargaining and corporate governance.

William has a particular interest in the public sector with an emphasis on public transportation. He currently serves as general counsel, counsel, and/or labor and employment counsel to numerous public transportation authorities across the United States.

William has extensive experience in negotiating labor contracts. His practice includes representing management in labor arbitrations and other grievance resolution proceedings, in National Labor Relations Board and state board charges (both as charging party and respondent) and identifying and resolving union-management conflicts before they escalate.

Prior to joining Jackson Lewis, William worked as the Chief of Staff and the Director of Legal Services for the Jacksonville Transportation Authority (JTA) where he had oversight of all legal affairs of the Authority. During his time at the JTA, the Jacksonville Business Chronicle named JTA the turnaround company of the year and the American Public Transportation Authority honored JTA with the Outstanding Public Transportation Achievement Award.

In addition, William was previously the chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority (MARTA). During his tenure as chairman at MARTA, he presided over the opening of two new rail stations, led the Board in the hiring of a new CEO and led the Board in the adoption of the development program for Lindbergh Center, largest transit oriented development project (at that time) in the U.S. with a budget of $401 million.
