From responding to demand letters, to drafting position statements for claims and charges pending before federal, state, and local administrative agencies, to defending against claims brought in arbitrations, federal and state courts, Milena assists employers with every aspect of litigation. Whether an employee brings a claim under a federal or state statute (such as, Title VII, ADA, ADEA, FMLA, FLSA, Virginia Human Rights Act, Virginians with Disabilities Act, Virginia Wage Payment Act, Virginia Minimum Wage Act, Virginia Whistleblower Protection Law), a common law tort (such as, assault and battery, intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress, false imprisonment, negligent hiring and retention, defamation, tortious interference, breach of a duty, misappropriation of trade secrets), or breach of contract, Milena has extensive experience litigating against these claims. Milena also helps employers navigate labor law issues, including organization campaigns, collective bargaining agreements, grievance arbitrations, and unfair labor practice charges. Milena regularly assists clients with garnishment issues, advising clients on how to respond to garnishment summons, preparing answers to garnishments, and negotiating settlements related to show causes issued and judgments entered for failure to answer garnishments.

In addition to her litigation practice, Milena provides employers with day-to-day advice and counseling, including answering questions and creating strategies to address employee discipline and termination, performance management, complaints of discrimination, harassment and retaliation, accommodations requests for sincerely-held religious beliefs, disabilities, pregnancy, childbirth, related medical conditions, and lactation, leave requests under the Family Medical Leave Act and various state laws, minimum wage and overtime compliance, employee misclassification, and reductions-in-force. Milena also works with employers by drafting, reviewing, and revising employee handbooks, policies, job description, disciplinary action notices, compensation plans, and agreement, including employment, confidentiality, non-compete, and non-solicitation, for compliance with federal, state, and local law. To maximize the effectiveness of workplace policies, procedures, and practices, Milena also regularly provides workplace training, virtually and in-person, on a wide variety of topics, including DEI, discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wage and hour, and leave and accommodation. As a part of her practice, Milena also assists employers by responding to personnel file requests and conducting internal investigations, culture surveys, and audits.

Prior to joining Jackson Lewis, Milena was a prosecutor in the Office of the Norfolk Commonwealth's Attorney. She now uses her prosecution experience to guide employers through criminal issues, investigations, and prosecutions, including understanding the results of background check, addressing crimes in the workplace, such as embezzlement and acts of violence, obtaining protective orders, facilitating communications with police departments and prosecutor's offices, and conducting internal investigations.

Milena's love and passion for labor and employment law started in law school when she took Labor Law, Employment Law, Comparative Employment Law, and ADR in the Workplace. While in law school, Milena externed for the Employment Unit of the Virginia Office of the Attorney General and was a teaching assistant for Appellate Advocacy. Milena was also a research assistant for Professor Ann C. Hodges, and assisted her in the drafting of Public Sector Employment: Cases and Materials, (West 3d ed. 2016) and Modernizing Disability Income for Cancer Survivors, 35 Hofstra Lab. & Emp. L.J. 2 (Spring 2018). During law school, Milena also served as a manuscript editor of the Richmond Journal of Law and Technology. As a member of the University of Richmond School of Law Trial Advocacy Board, Milena competed and finished as an advancing finalist in the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association's Trial Advocacy Tournament and regional runner-up in the American Association for Justice's Regional Trial Advocacy Tournament.
