Focusing his practice mostly on traditional labor law, Nick has experience in union organizing drives and elections, collective bargaining negotiations, contract administration, labor arbitrations, and unfair labor practice proceedings before the National Labor Relations Board. Nick also has experience handling matters before the New York State Division of Human Rights and the New York State Public Employment Relations Board.

Nick has worked on traditional labor matters in various industries, including manufacturing, automotive maintenance, and aerospace. Nick approaches each case and client with an appreciation for the individualized nature of industries and employers.

Having started his legal career as in-house counsel for the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAMAW), Nick is mindful of the constantly changing landscape in traditional labor law and the impact it has on employers. Nick also served as a law clerk with the National Labor Relations Board, Division of Judges.
