

New Version of Model FCRA Summary of Rights Released; And You Have One Week to Comply

By Kevin D. Holden, Susan M. Corcoran & Richard I. Greenberg

September 14, 2018

Meet the Authors

Kevin D. Holden

Principal
(804) 212-2888
Kevin.Holden@jacksonlewis.com

Susan M. Corcoran

(She/Her)
Principal
(914) 872-6871
Susan.Corcoran@jacksonlewis.com

Richard I. Greenberg

A new model “A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act” disclosure form document was released on September 12, 2018 by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB). Employers and background check companies should begin using the new form by September 21, 2018.

The federal agency responsible for oversight and drafting the model forms required under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) issued the revised form in an interim final rule on September 12, 2018.

Employers and background check companies are required to provide the disclosure form to employees and job applicants at certain times under the FCRA. A failure to provide the correct notification can lead to significant exposure, including class action litigation.

Why the Change?

In May 2018, responding to several, high-profile data breaches, Congress passed the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief, and Consumer Protection Act. The new law requires credit reporting bureaus, under certain circumstances, to provide consumers fraud alerts and unlimited, free national security freezes and freeze releases. These are intended to make it harder for identity thieves to open accounts in a consumer’s name.

The new legislation also amends the FCRA to exclude from consumer reporting information certain medical debts incurred by veterans. Additionally, it establishes a new dispute process with respect to such medical debt.

Finally, the new law mandates that whenever an employer or background check company is required to provide a copy of the “A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act” or the “Summary of Consumer Identity Theft Rights” disclosure form, they also must provide a notice regarding these new security freeze rights.

The interim final rule updates the CFPB’s model form (last revised in 2012) and incorporates the new required notices. According the CFPB, the interim rule provides that businesses can use the new model disclosure or a combination of the 2012 disclosure forms along with a summary of the security freeze rights, “so long as a separate page that contains the additional required information is provided in the same transmittal.”

Next Steps

Employers and background check companies must update their forms prior to September 21, 2018, to avoid any gaps in compliance.

Companies should seek advice from their legal counsel to ensure their forms comply

(Rich)
Principal
(212) 545-4080
Richard.Greenberg@jacksonlewis.com

with the new requirement.

Jackson Lewis attorneys are available to assist employers with their compliance efforts.

Related Services

Background Checks
Construction
Employment Litigation
Energy and Utilities
Entertainment and Media
Financial Services
Government Contractors
Healthcare
Higher Education
Hospitality
Insurance
Life Sciences
Manufacturing
Real Estate
Retail
Staffing and Independent Workforce
Technology
Transportation and Logistics

©2018 Jackson Lewis P.C. This material is provided for informational purposes only. It is not intended to constitute legal advice nor does it create a client-lawyer relationship between Jackson Lewis and any recipient. Recipients should consult with counsel before taking any actions based on the information contained within this material. This material may be considered attorney advertising in some jurisdictions. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

Focused on employment and labor law since 1958, Jackson Lewis P.C.'s 1,000+ attorneys located in major cities nationwide consistently identify and respond to new ways workplace law intersects business. We help employers develop proactive strategies, strong policies and business-oriented solutions to cultivate high-functioning workforces that are engaged and stable, and share our clients' goals to emphasize belonging and respect for the contributions of every employee. For more information, visit <https://www.jacksonlewis.com>.